Chapter 453: The End of the Eternal Battles

The Eternal Battlefields’ Purpose Fulfilled

For eons, the Eternal Battlefields' Realms stood as the proving grounds for Sung Jin-Woo’s celestial armies. These realms, vast and boundless, were where angels, dark angels, apostles of God, dark apostles, heavenly soldiers, and dark heavenly soldiers tested their strength, honed their skills, and perfected their unity in battle.

The purpose of these realms was not mere violence or chaos but preparation—ensuring that the multiverse’s defenders were ready to face any threat that might arise.

Now, Sung Jin-Woo, the True Absolute One, had seen enough. The results of these battles had satisfied him. The time had come to end the endless combat and redirect these forces toward their true purpose: maintaining peace and order across creation.

The Command from the Throne

Seated upon the Throne of Dominion in the Godverse, Sung Jin-Woo raised the Scepter of Dominion, and his voice echoed across the multiverse, resonating with authority and finality:

"The battles of the Eternal Battlefields are complete. The strength, discipline, and unity you have forged are sufficient. It is now time to set aside your weapons and take up the duties that await you. Peace must prevail, and you shall be its guardians."

With this command, the Eternal Battlefields were stilled. Weapons that had clashed for millennia fell silent, and the warriors who had fought so fiercely now stood at attention, ready to receive their new assignments.

The Redistribution of Duties

Sung Jin-Woo, in his infinite wisdom, assigned each group to roles that suited their unique strengths:

1. The Angels and Dark Angels
The angels, led by archangels like Gabriel, Michael, and Ridwan, were assigned to oversee the realms of light and goodness. Their duties included guiding mortals, protecting the weak, and maintaining harmony in the Heavenly Realm and Elysium. The dark angels, under the leadership of Amenadiel and Samael, were tasked with maintaining order in the darker realms, including the Netherworld. They also patrolled the multiverse to root out any hidden chaos or rebellion.

2. The Apostles of God and Dark Apostles
The apostles, beings of immense power and devotion, were spread across the multiverse. Apostles of God served as emissaries of light and truth, spreading divine wisdom and inspiring mortals to lead virtuous lives.
Dark apostles, on the other hand, worked in secrecy and shadows, ensuring balance by addressing the darker forces that threatened creation.

3. The Heavenly Soldiers and Dark Heavenly Soldiers
The heavenly soldiers, known for their discipline and valor, were deployed across various realms to protect key locations, divine trees, and mortal civilizations. They became the steadfast guardians of peace.
The dark heavenly soldiers, with their unparalleled might and resilience, patrolled the most dangerous and volatile areas of the multiverse. Their presence alone was enough to deter would-be threats.

4. The Shadow Soldiers and Fiery Shadow Soldiers
The centillions of shadow soldiers, created by Sung Jin-Woo, were stationed in every corner of creation. These tireless warriors acted as the first line of defense, always vigilant and ready to respond to any danger.
The fiery shadow soldiers, creations of Sung Su-Ho, were tasked with guarding the realms where draconic power thrived, ensuring the balance of the multiverse's primal forces.

A New Era of Peace

With the end of the Eternal Battles, the focus of Sung Jin-Woo’s armies shifted from war to peacekeeping. Each being embraced their new roles with gratitude and determination, knowing they were contributing to a greater purpose.

The multiverse itself seemed to breathe a sigh of relief as the echoes of battle faded, replaced by the harmonious efforts of the celestial forces working together to uphold Sung Jin-Woo’s divine vision.

Sung Jin-Woo’s Words of Wisdom

Addressing the assembled armies one final time, Sung Jin-Woo spoke with a voice that carried both strength and compassion:

"You have proven your strength in the battles of eternity. Now, prove your wisdom, your discipline, and your compassion. The multiverse thrives not through endless conflict but through unity, balance, and harmony. Go forth, fulfill your duties, and remember that your true strength lies not in destruction, but in preservation."

The celestial armies bowed deeply, their loyalty to Sung Jin-Woo unwavering.

A Monument to the Eternal Battles

To honor the sacrifices and efforts of those who had fought in the Eternal Battlefields, Sung Jin-Woo created a grand monument within the Godverse. This monument, forged from the purest celestial light and shadow, stood as a testament to the strength and unity of his forces.

Inscribed upon it were the words:
"In the crucible of battle, we forged unity. In unity, we found peace. May this monument remind all of the strength we wield and the harmony we seek."

The Eternal Battlefields Repurposed

Though the battles had ended, the Eternal Battlefields themselves were not abandoned. Sung Jin-Woo transformed these realms into vast training grounds where celestial beings could continue to refine their skills in simulated combat.

This ensured that the armies of the multiverse would remain vigilant and prepared for any future threats, even as they focused on maintaining peace.

A Legacy of Strength and Peace

The conclusion of the Eternal Battles marked the beginning of a new chapter for the multiverse—a chapter defined by balance, order, and harmony. Under Sung Jin-Woo’s guidance, the celestial forces became not only warriors but also guardians, protectors, and shepherds of creation.

The multiverse thrived, its countless realms connected by the shared vision of a future where strength served peace and justice reigned supreme.
